Research

Principal investigator – 'Social Protection System with a Right-Based Approach for the Capital District of Bogotá', this is the first stage of a two-tiered project researching seven rights and related policies (economic security, employment, nutrition, health, education, housing and sport & leisure). It provides a conceptual foundation for each one of the rights on the basis of the Declaration of Economic, Social and Cultural Rights toward a new approach to social protection system of the Colombian Capital. It evaluates the state-of-the-art of the indicators according to the four dimensions across which the entitlement to each one of the rights can be measured (availability, accessibility, adaptability and opportunity). Finally it provides a proposal to establish intolerable levels for each indicator, minimum levels to be granted by the municipality and a projection in terms of the desired progress in each indicator over the next 10 years.

Principal investigator - 'Cities and Climate Change Challenges: Bogotá as a Late Adapter', a case study carried out within an UGEC comparative research on 'Adapting Cities to climate change: Opportunities and constraint (Findings from eight Cities)', coordinated by Professor Dirk Heinrichs from the Helmholtz Centre for Environmental Research (Leipzig, Germany). (January – June).

2008

Principal investigator - 'Climate change risk-prone marine-related livelihoods in Tumaco, Pacific Coast (Colombia)', a case study based on multiple sources of evidence including participative appraisal, institutional assessment and secondary hard information such as laser generated maps and reports. First fieldwork stage and research report. (March - October).

2007

Research director – Financed by The World Bank: 'Informal Sector work in Colombia: Motivations, Knowledge of Social Protection Programs and Willingness to Pay for Benefits. (May - August).

2006

Project co-ordinator – Financed by COLCIENCIAS¹: 'Generation of insights for the policy of social and vulnerable groups' protection in Colombia'. This was a study on poverty, vulnerability and social protection, enriched by an eight-month fieldwork study on the dynamics of vulnerability, household's coping strategies and livelihoods, carried out on a 400 households sample in Bogotá (200), Cali (100) and Manizales (100). (November 2005 – December).

2004

Principal investigator- Financed by the National Planning Department of Colombia: 'Poverty and Environmental Risk', background study for the Mission for a Strategy for the Eradication of Poverty and Inequality'. (February – September).

1997

Project co-ordinator- Financed by the Dutch NGO WASTE: 'Income generation from hospital waste management in Bogotá, Colombia'. Research carried out as external researcher of the Institute for Environmental Studies of the National University of Colombia (IDEA). (January - September).

¹ COLCIENCIAS is the institution that funds public research in Colombia, similar to ESCOR in the UK.
